

June 8, 2010

To Whom It May Concern:

I am pleased to write this letter of recommendation on behalf of Adam Halemano, a graduate student with whom I was privileged to work during the fall of 2009 in an online class, CUR 524 Instructional Design, through the University of Phoenix online campus. This class is an intensive six week course, requiring substantial assignment completion, study and participation, as well as the design and creation of a formal, detailed individual instructional plan. Adam completed everything asked of him promptly. His work was insightful and well done.

Adam was proactive and diligent in the completion of all of the assignments for this class. He participated successfully on a learning team, earning the respect and appreciation of his teammates. He regularly shared excellent insights based on his own teaching experience. He was pleasantly assertive and positive in his communication with me, and with the other members of the class. Though I have not met him face to face, I am happy to report a very positive experience in working with Adam. I found the quality of his academic work to be very high. I believe he will continue to be successful in his academic pursuits. I am pleased to offer this recommendation, and do so without reservation. Please feel free to contact me should you desire any further information.

Sincerely,

Kenneth R. Nielsen
University of Phoenix Online Faculty

nken@email.phoenix.edu
801-465-4416
801-400-5867